

IN THE ABSTRACT

Please cancel the present Abstract of the present invention and substitute therefor the Abstract as presented herein:

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electronic commerce system enables a seller to register items in an item database. The electronic commerce system enables a coordinator to coordinate combination of registered items, and stores the combination of items in a coordination database. The system opens the coordination database to the public to receive an order of an item from a consumer. The system clears payments of charges from an account of the consumer to the seller when a transaction is completed.